

Customized Solutions Case Study

Wireless Service

Customer

A manufacturer sought a third party to manage the processing of wireless signals for a new wireless communication component that it was developing.

Customized Solution provided by CRN Wireless

After meeting with the customer to discuss the functionality and communication objectives of the new wireless component, CRN Wireless worked closely with the customer to design the product and the communication infrastructure. The customer did not have experience with wireless communications and sought a third party to manage all of the wireless signal reception, processing and reporting. The product was launched successfully on a nationwide basis and all wireless signals were transmitted to CRN Wireless headquarters for processing and subsequent reporting. The expertise of CRN Wireless allowed the customer to quickly and efficiently add a high-growth wireless product line.
